Finds "The Twist" Distasteful

• Allow me to put in a very strong protest against the last two Ed Sullivan shows on account of the groups of "twisters" who have performed those horrifying exhibitions of flesh and suggestive contortions. With their yells, they seem to be stepping on live coals. It is in very bad taste to say the least. And to make matters worse, on the Jan. 1 show they had a group of children performing that same "twist." Is that supposed to be funny, or artistic, or what? Frankly, I am puzzled. . . .—Mrs. H.R., Arborfield, Sask.

Disagree With Writer

• I can't help but protest a letter from N.S.R., Stettler, Alta., "A Viewer Speaks Up." He says why do we have to suffer through Juliette, Don Messer, Danny Thomas, My Three Sons, Country Hoedown, etc. These are my favorite programs. I could say I don't like Close-Up, Newsmagazine, Festival and all sportscasts; so what I don't like, I shut off. I'm sure a lot of others enjoy Canadian performers as much as I do. — Mrs. H.M., Winnipeg.

• . . . I and many others in this district disagree with N.S.R. of Stettler, Alta., very strongly where he criticizes Don Messer, Country Hoedown, Juliette and similar programs. We look forward to these—they are our favorites.

Just because we have had them for quite a while does not mean that we are tired of them, but just the contrary. We also like Close-Up, Newsmagazine and that type of program. If any change is made, I would suggest cutting down on some of the sport telecasts, especially football. — J.E.B., Palmer, Sask.

Appreciates Children's Programs

• I would like to let you know how much I, as a mother, appreciate the good quality of children's programs you have in the afternoon. They top all others here in Winnipeg. Keep up the good work. We especially enjoy

Chez Helene. . . . Although there are now other television stations here, we still think CBC is best—Mrs. G.M., St. Vital, Man.

Northern Messenger Welcomed

• To Northern Messenger: I think I speak for all of us who have lived in the North country when I say thanks to you for the fine service you and the CBC are giving. Your efforts for accuracy and clarity show you are interested in us, and this makes your voices a welcome part of every home and camp in the isolated places.

. . . I have been gone since 1949, but the Messenger is getting my fever up again. — C.L.C., Springfield, Missouri.

• . . . The Messenger is the most unusual public service program that I've heard since I broke into the radio-television field, and I feel that it is a program that truly serves the best interests of your listening public. Miss B.L.S., Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

Grateful for "Enrichment"

• I want to offer you my sincere and enthusiastic commendation for the current University of the Air series of addresses by W. Cantwell Smith, "The Faith of Other Men." . . . I want you to know how grateful I am to the CBC for making such enrichment available. I do hope that thousands and thousands more feel the same.

This sort of thing renews my faith and hope; it makes me glad to be alive, and electrifies me with a pride in being a Canadian. . . . I shall hope this series of addresses by Dr. Cantwell Smith will in due course become available in printed form.—S.R.G.H., Winnipeg.

It has been the policy of the CBC Publications Branch to issue reprints of many talks in the University of the Air series. Watch for an announcement in the CBC Times if and when this series is made available in print.

"Ridiculous Script" for Heritage

• Heritage on Jan. 7 (The Vanners) contributed to the disrepute of all concerned. A ridiculous script, anaesthetic acting, unbelievable characters (masochistic Phyllis, the unbearable Margaret) and not the best of Anglican rolling stock provided an embarrassing, ill-balanced and uncomfortable half-hour.—The Rev. D.G.H., Birch Hills, Sask.

Salute Broadway Team On Sunday TV Special

A MUSICAL SALUTE to the composing team of Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe will be seen this Sunday evening on the CBC television network. Lerner and Loewe, who first started working together in 1942 on a musical entitled Life of the Party, have had four big Broadway musicals and motion picture musical, Gigi, in the last 15 years.

Brigadoon was their first Broadway hit, running for 581 performances, beginning in 1947. This was followed by Paint Your Wagon in 1951, My Fair Lady in 1956, which is still going strong on Broadway and in London, and Camelot, which received its premiere at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre in the fall of 1960 and which is now on Broadway.

They combined their talents for Gigi in 1957 and the picture won several Academy Awards. Appearing on the hour-long special The Broadway of Lerner and Loewe, this Sunday will be several of the stars who have appeared in the musicals of this composing team: Julie Andrews, Richard Burton, Maurice Chevalier, Robert Goulet and Stanley Holloway.

A FILM SEEN December 11 in the Camera Canada series, "Last Summer," has been scheduled for a repeat telecast due to overwhelming public response.

The nature film, depicting the sights and sounds of the marsh, forest and prairie, is to be seen on most stations Sunday, April 22 in the early afternoon, pre-empting Junior Magazine. (If present programming practice continues at that time, CBWT viewers will see the film Saturday, April 28. Watch for further announcements.)

Dr. W. W. H. Gunn co-ordinated the film, commissioned by the CBC. Two previous CBC radio programs in which Dr. Gunn participated won international awards. Nature photographers Dick Bird, Kenneth Campbell and Cleveland Grant worked much of the summer taking the thousands of feet of film that were edited down to the 60-minute program.

It is perhaps significant that all film was shot in colour, with an eye on the day when the CBC is equipped to telecast in the full spectrum. ANOTHER CBC FILM that attracted much favourable comment after being seen last December hasn't been permitted much time on the shelf in the meantime, either. The Kidnapping at Scratching River, produced by Alwyn Scott at CBC Winnipeg and shown on CBWT, told the story of Sister Ste. Therese, founder of the St. Boniface Hospital and St. Mary's Academy.

Because many of the Sisters of Charity Grey Nuns at St. Boniface Hospital did not have the opportunity to see the original telecast, Mr. Scott arranged a private showing of the film for them. They were so appreciative of this true drama concerning their famous predecessor that they have now requested that the film be shown at their mother convent in Montreal.

IT HAS TAKEN little time for talented young tenor Gerald Loewen to achieve recognition. Graduated about a year ago from Bethel College in Newton, Kansas, with a Bachelor's degree in music, he made his musical debut in the opera Martha singing the taxing role of Lionel the Farmer, in a production at his college.

Now he is entering the field of broadcasting, first on radio, and soon on television. This Monday, February 12, he is heard on Song Album at 6:45 p.m., singing works by Henry Purcell and Ralph Vaughan Williams. Then on March 28 he will appear as leading tenor in the CBC television production of Gustav Holst's opera "Savitri," to be directed by English composer-conductor Bernard Naylor. Mr. Loewen is a native of Altona, Manitoba.

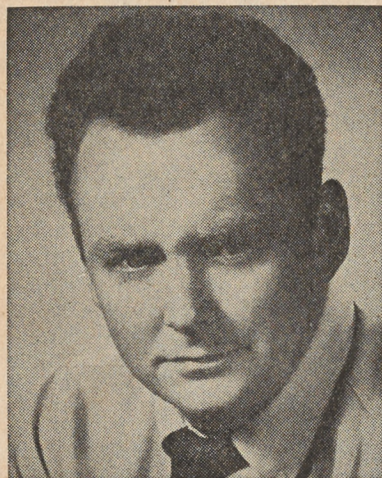

EVER HEAR of national insanity, or at least, national "unhealthy thinking?" On Close-Up this Sunday, noted psychiatrists, a philosopher and a political scientist theorize that pathological thinking and reactions of individuals can be projected on a national scale so that the whole international outlook of a country can seem twisted. Be sure to see "The Psychology of the Cold War" for an expert analysis of the present tense international situation.

On Our Cover . . .

Folksinger Reg Gibson and guitarist-vocalist Jimmie Pirie sing nostalgic folk songs each Thursday on their radio program, Shenandoah (10:05 p.m.). The duo appear as soloists this week as well as on CBWT's Swingalong, at 10:30 p.m., Thursday. Jimmie Pirie is a regular on Red River Jamboree, as a member of The Altones quartet, while Reg Gibson is a frequent guest on Winnipeg-produced programs.

Douglas Rain

PERHAPS ONE of the busiest actors for the CBC is Douglas Rain, who makes a guest appearance Monday in the Festival presentation of Elizabeth The Queen.

Mr. Rain's face is particularly familiar to the theatre-going public of Winnipeg, where he starred in mid-December opposite Zoe Caldwell in the MTC's production of The Playboy of the Western World, a production in which he received such critical acclaim as "a superb, moving performance," and "they (Caldwell and Rain) have added lustre to the theatre scene."

We were able to interview Mr. Rain during his stay in Winnipeg and to record some of his opinions on Canadian theatre in its present state of development. Rather short in stature he is well built and has an extremely expressive face. The main factor which contributes to his success is his intellectual approach to roles and participation in the theatre, a quality not commonly found in the modern actor.

He does not become so deeply involved in the life of the theatre as to distort his own critical appraisals of it and is able to give blunt, forthright and sound criticisms from an audiences' point of view. While in Winnipeg, for example, he had the opportunity of seeing the University of Manitoba's production of Measure for Measure and while he does not approve of students attempting anything as difficult as Shakespeare, he was greatly impressed by the high standards which were achieved in the production.

He is also impressed with the work being done by the Manitoba Theatre Centre but feels it is not the only medium which could be used in Winnipeg, where he thinks talent abounds and where there is insufficient work for producers, actors and writers.

Mr. Rain was born in Winnipeg in 1929, the son of a railway yard-man. "I never really decided to be

The PRESS:

How Does It Serve Us?

THE QUESTION of how the Canadian public is served by the press is the basis for the 1962 Winter Conference from February 16 to 18. Considering the many conditions under which newspapers operate, the conference will try to establish the peak of the quality of research, reporting and presentation of the news.

A documentary program this Friday evening on the CBC television network will set the stage for the week-end discussions, to be held at the Education Centre in Toronto. The Winter Conference is organized by the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs in collaboration with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

The conference itself gets underway Saturday morning with the presentation of three papers: How We Get Our News, by Louis Lyons, curator of the Nieman Foundation for Journalism, Harvard University; Pressures on the Press, by Stuart Keate, publishers of the Victoria Times; and The Press in the Community, by Robert Fulford, book and art editor of the Toronto Daily Star. Saturday afternoon, discussion groups, led by various newspapermen, politicians and public relations officials, will talk about the three topics.

A panel discussion on aspects of the subject raised during the Saturday meetings will be held Sunday and this will be broadcast by both CBC Television and CBC Radio. The hour-long television program will be seen in the afternoon and the radio broadcast, on Trans-Canada network, will be 5 p.m., Feb. 18.

John Saywell of the department of history at the University of Toronto will be host for the Friday night program. Those taking part are: Grattan O'Leary, publisher of the Ottawa Journal and chairman of the recent Canadian Royal Commission on Publications; James A. Wechsler, editor and columnist of the New York Post; Jean-Louis Gagnon, editor of Le Nouveau Journal, Montreal; William F. Buckley, Jr., editor of the National Review; Louis Lyons; Stuart Keate; and Robert Fulford.

The panel for the Sunday discussion is: Pierre Berton, associate editor of the Toronto Daily Star; Arthur Blakely, chief of the Ottawa Bureau of the Montreal Gazette; R. A. Farquharson, minister-counsellor at the Canadian Embassy, Washington; and Gérard Pelletier, editor of La Presse.

In addition to the broadcast from the Conference itself, CBC Radio, on Thursday, March 1, will present a 30-minute presentation and assessment of the addresses and discussion at the Saturday meetings. This material will not have been previously broadcast on either radio or television.

South Saskatchewan Dam

New Prosperity for The Palliser Triangle

ONE HUNDRED YEARS ago explorer John Palliser described the south central Saskatchewan area as a desert and warned that the large triangle of short-grass prairie (now known as the Palliser Triangle) should never be cultivated. Now, however, in the same area an engineering colossus is taking shape; in three years it will provide for better use of the water resources of the South Saskatchewan River through irrigation, river control, power, urban water supply and recreation.

To illustrate the size of this project, the South Saskatchewan River dam when completed will be the largest rolled-earth dam ever built in Canada and one of the larger dams of its kind in the world. The amount of earth moved in building the dam would fill a hole the size of a square city block and 1½ miles deep. The dam itself will rise 210 feet above the bed of the river, or the same height as a 17-storey building. Enough steel will be used to make a three-eighths of an inch diameter steel rod long enough to stretch around the earth and the cement needed would fill to capacity 3,000 freight cars. The concrete used would build a two-lane, 225-mile super highway. The diversion tunnels will be the size of railway tunnels.

Control of the river will be achieved by two dams, the major one on the river itself at a point approximately half way between the towns of Outlook and Elbow in Saskatchewan, the other at the divide between the valleys of the South Saskatchewan and the Qu'Appelle rivers. The agreement provides that Canada and Saskatchewan will share the cost of building the two dams and all other works associated with the creation of the reservoir, 75 per cent to be paid by the federal government and 25 per cent by the province.

The project is now about half finished and by 1963 the dam-builders should be ready to divert the river itself through the five tunnels and fill the present gap spanned by a $1,300,000 construction bridge. The main dam will create a new lake 140 miles long with a shoreline of nearly 500 miles. Overall cost of the project is estimated at $100,000,000.

This Wednesday on CBC television's Explorations, the story behind the South Saskatchewan River dam will be told. In this National Film Board production, A Lake for the Prairie, a review will be made of the century of developments leading to the decision to build the dams and an up-to-date report on progress of the project will be shown.

an actor, but my father felt—and I agree now—that it was the best way for me to express myself. So I got in early and just never stopped."

By 1948, Douglas Rain had leading roles in the University of Manitoba dramatic productions of Noel Coward plays and in John Doe, the first undergraduate group presentation to be invited to enter the Dominion Drama Festival. During his summers in Banff in 1948 and 1949, he played the title role in Oedipus Rex and was in Ladies in Retirement. In the fall of 1949, he returned to Winnipeg to help reorganize the Little Theatre and play in Pygmalion.

In 1950 he went to study at the famed Old Vic in England, and at the end of his studies he was invited to join the Old Vic Theatre Company where he remained for three seasons.

Rain auditioned for Tyrone Guthrie, the artistic director of the Stratford Festival in Ontario, and was accepted for the 1953 season, in which he played the Marquis of Dorset and understudied Alec Guinness in Richard III, and appeared in All's Well that Ends Well. From then on, he did many CBC radio and television shows in addition to performing eight seasons with the Stratford Festival, and several appearances at the Crest. "There is no substitute for the live audience of the theatre," Rain has said, "but I think highly of the advantages of television, in which close-ups allow subtleties not possible on the stage."

As for Canadian playwrights at the moment, Rain says, "W. O. Mitchell (author of the Jake and the Kid series, Black Bonspiel, The Devil's Instrument, and Honey and Hoppers) is the only one I know of who can write good poetic realism. There are too few who can give an original approach that reflects our times without morbid dissection and gloomy analysis."

One of the most versatile of Canadian actors, Mr. Rain says that acting in Canada appeals to him because of the interesting variety of work available and because of the constant challenge to play new interpretations of old roles. He is convinced that in Canada today there are many opportunities for young people interested in acting as a profession, cognizant of the importance of the study of literature, history, art, and music in helping an actor "grow." But he warns that competition is fierce and the aspiring professional actor requires great stamina and self-reliance, but as a profession, acting is the most rewarding work in the world.

MURDER MYSTERY with a DIFFERENCE

AMONG CBC MONTREAL'S most interesting contributions to CBC Wednesday Night during the last two seasons have been adaptations of plays by leading French-Canadian writers. Adelaide Menthe, another of these plays, is heard at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday. It was adapted by Alvin Goldman from Anne Hébert's La Mercière.

It was originally presented on television in French and although it was Miss Hébert's first venture into this medium, she was already well known to French readers in all parts of the world as the author of sensitive poetry and stories. To French Canadians she was remembered as the author of several radio plays. In July, 1958, her first novel, Les Chambres de bois, was about to be published in Paris, and La Semaine à Radio-Canada (the French edition of CBC Times) was describing her as the French-Canadian writer with the largest overseas following because of the novel.

Adelaide Menthe is described as a murder mystery with a difference. It's about a Canadian newspaperman who, in his attempt to solve a seemingly motiveless murder in a little French town, finds himself caught up with an eccentric, aristocratic woman and her dissipated middle-aged son who are trying to live in the past in their crumbling castle.

Jean Rivière, the journalist, will be played by Paul Hecht, a CBC Montreal announcer — host on CBC Radio International which is heard Friday nights on the Trans-Canada network, and also a student at the National Theatre School in Montreal. Powys Thomas, artistic director of the National Theatre School, will play the role of Olivier de Beau-Bassin, the son of the Marquis de Beau-Bassin. Eleanor Stuart will have the role of the Marquise. Alan Mills has been cast as Achille, the town idiot, a singing and speaking role, while Percy Rodriguez will portray Philippe Floche, the bumbling magistrate.

Others in the cast include Joan Blackman, Eileen Clifford, Martha Buhs, Connelly Rhodes, Mignon Elkins, Phyllis Carter, George Alexander, Gerald Rowan, Corinne Copnick, Madeleine Kronby, Walter Massey and Frank Lloyd.

Revue

According to Music-Hall's less-than-serious historians, Canada may be celebrating, on or about the year 2012 the Feast of St. Paratism."

Replacing Music-Hall, Sunday, February 11, Revue will present a parody of today's most talked-about movement in Canada: Separatism.

A number of distinguished "professors" will be on hand to review the history of Separatism with appropriate facts, figures and music.

Featured on Revue will be an experienced team: Olivier Guimond, singer-dancer Denyse Filiatrault, Paul Desmarteaux, Jean Coutu, smiling Michel Louvain, the idol of teenagers, actress-comedienne Juliette Béliveau, guitar-strumming Jean-Pierre Ferland, Jacques Normand of course and the one and only Jean Coutu . . . to name but a few!

Revue will be seen on Sunday, February 11, from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Récital, Wednesday, February 14 at 10:00, will have as guest soloist mezzo-soprano Marguerite Pâquet, who will sing three melodies by Claude Debussy: "Promenoir des deux amants," "Fleur des blés" and "Fêtes Galantes," another by Caplet: "La Croix douloureuse," and finally, two melodies by Manuel de Falla: "Les Colombes" and "Séguedille."

"Le Temps des Lilas" (The Time of the Lilacs) by French-Canadian playwright Marcel Dubé, will be seen on Channel 6 on Thursday, February 15 at 9:00. "Le Temps des Lilas" is basically a drama, although it is not quite so dark and melodramatic as some of the author's other plays. It concerns an aging couple, Blanche and Virgile, under whose roof live a number of boarders, who by habit have become quite like their own family.

"Le Temps des Lilas" stars Janine Sutto as the aging woman, Blanche; Denise Pelletier as Marguerite; Louise Marleau as the young Johanne; Jean Duceppe as Virgile, Yves Létourneau as the newcomer Vincent; Georges Groulx as Horace.

The Modern Woman

ONE MAN'S DISCOVERY: Women want to cover up their type-writers and get back to the sink, but men won't let them. After fighting for the vote and equality and recognition in business and the professions, and winning a measure of acceptance, English-speaking wives are up to their ears in a counter-revolution. Great masses of them are saying to heck with equality—give us back our cocoons in the home! But their husbands, particularly in the United States, don't want them to retreat. Wives' contributions to the family purse are too attractive. The husband pays for the daily bread but it's usually the wife's earnings which supply the champagne—the split-level bungalow, the late-model car, the deep freeze.

Male reluctance to allow women to return to their original role affects a large number of female workers, for a third or even 40 per cent of the American labour force is composed of women, and all but seven per cent of American women get married. The strains of emotional and technical changes in a complex society have hit women as hard as men, and on all levels—spinsters, wives, widows, divorcees.

That's what free-lance reporter John David Hamilton found when he interviewed women of all ages and on several economic and intellectual levels in Britain, the United States and Canada. He was trying to learn if modern woman is the pampered, cosseted, aggressive, independent, money-spending creature she is sometimes made out to be. To hear her tell it, many of the pleasures of freedom and equality are illusory.

Sunday afternoon at 5 p.m. CBC Radio's Project '62 presents tape-recorded views of The Modern Woman, collected by Hamilton from such representative women as anthropologist Margaret Mead; writers Marya Mannes and Dame Rebecca West; lecturer and former Economist editor Lady Barbara Ward Jackson; British Labour M.P. Barbara Castle; noted physician Dr. Edith Bowen; Dr. Mary Bunting, president of Barnard College, New York; Mrs. Grinburg Vinevar, a French lawyer and chief of section of the Status of Women in the Human Rights Division of the United Nations; and scores of housewives, career and college girls, widows and divorcees. Not all of them yearned to return to the shelter of the nest, but the majority thought grandma had the right idea.

Hamilton says "It seems to me that the big difference between the situation today and the way it was 50 or 60 years ago is not so much an economic one as it is a problem of emotional adjustment. We hear wives saying their life is harder than their mother's—not physically, of course, but today wives are required to play so many roles for their husbands: housewife, servant, friend, mistress, nursemaid, chauffeur, bookkeeper, glamour gal, and goad, that they're exhausted emotionally and want to do something about it.

"Women used to be able to retreat into marriage and never have to think again. They didn't have to face new challenges. They let the big issues fall on the shoulders of their husbands, who decided where they lived, what sort of work he did, how the children were educated, etc. It must have been a pleasant, vegetable life. And many women want to live that way now. We hear girls saying 'Oh, I think I'll quit work and get married.' As if marriage meant stopping work. What they don't realize is that looking after a house is the dreariest, dullest, most repetitive job in the world."

Many of the intellectual women Hamilton talked to firmly believe it's a waste if women don't use their brains and education in a career which continues after marriage. The only concession to biology they make is time off for pregnancy and to look after children in the home during early childhood. But once a child starts to go to school, they feel the mother should return to her outside job. They take it for granted that this will be accepted by husbands. They see marriage as a partnership.

Hamilton says none of these intellectual women feel that this destroys the essential womanhood of the female, or that it is destructive to the male ego. "But obviously," he points out, "there is a great difference between the talented woman doctor who is married to a professor of history and who wants to pursue her career after marriage, and the labourer's wife who works in a cafe or in a factory. In the first case, whatever else is said against women in careers, there is a rich intellectual fulfilment for a woman doctor when she continues her career; for the waitress there is no satisfaction in working at a menial and tedious job that is ill-paid and reflects its dullness in her family relationships. Of course there are times when there is a real need for a woman to work, even at a tedious job, because of her husband's illness or unemployment, but this can't be considered in the general picture."

Mrs. Vinevar doesn't agree with the back-to-kitchen movement. She says it's better for a woman and her family when she takes any kind of job that gets her out among people, even if it means working

METROPOLITAN OPERA

La Perichole. Operetta in three acts. Music by Offenbach. Paris, 1868. Featuring soprano Laurel Hurley, tenors Theodor Uppman and Cyril Ritchard. Conductor is Jean Morel.

Piquillo and La Perichole, two street singers, come to the city of Lima, Peru, to take part in the festivities celebrating the birthday of the Viceroy. They sing in the public square but get no money and are almost starved. He goes to sing elsewhere in the streets while she sinks down exhausted on a bench. The Viceroy sees her and struck by her beauty requests her to come with him to his palace. Longing for a good meal and thinking she can outwit the Viceroy if he becomes troublesome, she decides to accompany him.

In order to further his scheme and to keep within the law the official sends out his men to find some poor man who will "marry and leave" La Perichole for a price. They find a despondent Piquillo about to hang himself. He is rescued, plied with wine, and taken to the palace where he unknowingly weds La Perichole. Piquillo is amazed when he comes out of his stupor and is informed that he has married the Viceroy's favourite, but this turns into hot indignation when he discovers that she is none other than his sweetheart. He is about to spoil all her plans to escape but she prevails upon him to wait. She then appeals to the better nature of the official who sends them out with his full pardon and a princely present.

Although simple, the story is both pathetic and comical and ranks with the really first-class libretti. The music is typically brilliant beginning with the lively Song Of The Three Cousins. Then comes a drinking song—a duet between Piquillo and La Perichole, Cavalier And Captive. The Letter and The Topsy Song by La Perichole, and the final chorus in the first act, Ah, How Charming A Wedding. In the second act: women's chorus, Ah Signor, Pray Open Your Eyes and Ah Monsieur, Good Morning. In the third act: La Perichole's song, Piquillo, Cease This Foolish Anger; chorus, When The Hour Of The Feast Approaches; and the lovely duet by the two lovers, A King Was Wont To Stray.

PARKING ONESELF in one's favourite easy chair in front of the 21-inch screen each Saturday afternoon is becoming almost as much of a ritual as the Saturday night bath. Perhaps I'm too optimistic in making such a statement, but for followers of CBC Television's coverage of sporting events, I think I'll find some backers. To qualify my initial statement let's take a look at the programming schedule for Saturday, February 10.

For the track and field devotees, CBC cameras focus on the International Meet of Champions at the Winnipeg Arena, providing videotaped highlights of the January 27 competition.

The largest crowd to ever watch an indoor meet on this side of the "49th," 8,500 people, were treated to record-breaking performances by both Canadian and American competitors. Actually, indoor track and field is still in its infancy. Three years ago, people who couldn't discern between a four minute mile and a false start are now packing arenas south of the border, sitting in comfortable surroundings and thrilling to the performances of both native and foreign competitors. The same holds true in Winnipeg, thanks to the efforts of the Canadian Legion, who put their faith and, more important, their ronto and Bill Boyle of Notre Dame; milers John Camien of Kansas and Jim Irons of Toronto are some of the athletes who will be seen in this hour-long feature.

Immediately following the track and field competition, "The Wonderful World of Golf" takes you across the pond to Italy and the Olgiata Country Club near Rome. Italian professional Ugo Grappaconi trades shots with American professional Ken Venturi. The 6,791 par 72 course was designed by England's outstanding golf architect C. K. Cotton, and also boasts one of the world's most lavish clubhouses.

Back home again, CBC cameras take you to Toronto, where Canada's top five pin bowlers topple the maples at O'Connor Bowl.

To round out the day, the regular NHL telecast from Maple Leaf Gardens, features Toronto and Montreal. This is the rare opportunity, other than playoffs, to see the top two teams in the NHL, perform on the same pond in front of the television cameras. It should be a dandy.

So for those who get their sport ing thrills via television, Saturday, February 10, is definitely one day to circle on the callendar.

dollars, into support of the sport. Stars such as Bruce Kidd, Toronto's teen-age distance sensation, and Canada's athlete of the year for 1961; and possibly the number one attraction of any meet in North America, veteran distance man Doug Kyle of Calgary; pole-vaulters John Rose of Arizona State and J. D. Martin of the University of Oklahoma; quarter-milers Bill Carruthers, George Sheperd of To-in an office, a store or a restaurant and putting the tiny children in a nursery school. When Hamilton asked one woman with two children if she found real fulfilment in maintaining a home, she replied that she gets about as much fulfilment at it as she would working as a janitor.

But while intellectual North American women are revolting against the drudgery of housework, it's different in Canada, Hamilton says. Canadian women he talked to accept not an inferior, but a lesser role in family life. They expect the male to be dominant. A woman official at the University of Toronto told him that most of the girls who take the liberal arts course aren't really interested in careers except as stopgaps until they marry. A girl he interviewed at York University put her finger on the attitude of many girl students when she said the campus was a hunting ground for husbands—she went there not with the idea of preparing for a career but "to meet a better-class of man than I could find anywhere else."

Hamilton found it difficult to pinpoint the emotional problems affecting modern women's widespread dissatisfaction with her role in life. "It's not just a sex problem," he says, "though sex is part of the general discontent. No doubt there is more sexual freedom everywhere and a breaking-down of the old double standard to a considerable extent. Americans are almost unbelievably romantic and high-minded in their approach to sex—the only group I talked to who believed implicitly in the faithfulness of wives, though this breaks down in practice, as the divorce rate shows. Americans are seekers, always looking for the romantic, true single love—a woman who can be everything to them so they won't have to seek other women.

Hamilton says he gets the strong impression, and it surprises him, that women think they could really do better in life if it weren't for men. More and more women are being forced to reach out with their minds and bodies and they don't like it. But the working married woman seems here to stay—every survey indicates she's built into the labour force, because there aren't enough single women to do the jobs.

Can she adjust to her new role in a complex society? Where's this wide-spread feminine revolt leading? Hamilton offers some startling answers.

Khachaturian Describes Musical Life in Russia

RECENTLY a tape containing a one-hour program, Khachaturian: the Man and His Music, arrived at the CBC International Service in Montreal. It is described by an unidentified narrator, who speaks with an American accent, as "a feature prepared by Radio Moscow for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation," and it is the result of a CBC request for an Interview for the series The Composer Speaks. As that series is now finished, the Russian program on Khachaturian will be heard instead during the last hour of CBC Radio International this Friday at 9:00 p.m. on Trans-Canada radio.

CBC's request for an interview with a Soviet composer was accompanied by some questions suggested by Helmut Blume, who conducted several other interviews on The Composer Speaks. A few of the questions are put directly to Khachaturian, who answers them through an interpreter; the answers to the others have been worked into the continuity. For the benefit of listeners who would like to note how the answers have been made part of the Khachaturian biography, here are the original questions:

(1) What is the course of training for a composer in the U.S.S.R.? (2) What are his professional opportunities after graduation? (3) Does the state . . . guarantee the publication and performance of new works? . . . (4) Does the Russian composer receive "royalties" for each performance of his work in his own country? (5) Is there such a thing as a union of composers resembling the Canadian Composers' League, and if so, what are its functions? (6) By the same token, is there a Musicians' Union in the U.S.S.R. comparable to the American Federation of Musicians, and if so what are its functions? (7) Could you tell us something about the general aspects of musical training in the schools, the conservatories, the academies and the universities? (8) Could you talk a little bit about yourself, your own course of studies, your stylistic preferences and personal idiom? And would you please introduce us to the musical examples of your work which we are going to hear in this program with a few explanations as to their style, contents, and purpose? (9) What have been the guiding influences that have formed your expression and style? (10) What do you consider to be the function of the composer in society? (11) Do you think that the future of music lies in the limited orbit of a traditional, tonality-based idiom, or do you feel that the future will bring an emancipation from tonality and tonally-centered idioms? . . . (12) Are there composers in Russia who experiment in electronic, aleatoric and dodecaphonic music? (13) At the International Composers' Conference in Stratford, Ontario, in 1960 . . . your delegates criticized the extreme modernism of dodecaphonic, aleatoric, and electronic music as being completely out of touch with the tastes and needs of contemporary audiences. How do you reconcile the right of the composer to evolve a new personal idiom of his own with the problem of the conventional tastes and preferences of the majority of concert audiences; particularly in the light of many historical precedents which demonstrate that great composers have frequently been far ahead of, and misunderstood by, their contemporary listeners?

The answers may be heard on CBC Radio International. The program also includes generous samplings of the music of Khachaturian, including the finale from the Violin Concerto, the waltz from the Masquerade Suite, two selections from the ballet Spartacus, the Ballad of My Native Land for male chorus and orchestra, What Children Dream Of, for children's choir and orchestra, and his Sabre Dance.

Follow above method for mixing. Put a griddle on medium high heat when pan is hot. Place cakes into pan. Allow to bake 5 to 8 minutes on each side turning only once. They should be light brown and when cooked the edges are dry. Serve hot with butter, honey, cheese and tea.

FRENCH "The Painless Way"

PROFESSOR Jean-Paul Vinay, host and instructor on CBC-TV's educational program Speaking French, is a natural actor-comedian who enjoys his purposeful clowning as much as his Sunday afternoon viewers do.

Professor Vinay catches the interest of his pupils by devising comic sketches to illustrate points of grammar and to impress vocabulary on the viewer. "Comedy," he says, "puts my pupils in a receptive mood."

With the aid of his assistant, Montreal fashion model Phyllis Clapperton, he may don a wig, dress up as a baby or pretend to be a concert pianist, all to make his pupils laugh their way to a better understanding of French.

"Every incident is worked out to tie in with the lesson," he states. "I think that the principal idea of the teacher ought to be to improvise and appear casual."

Speaking French follows a classroom technique, with students from Montreal schools participating. Grammatical exposition is kept at a minimum and emphasis is placed on conversational language, with Professor Vinay using many tricks and aids to linguistic learning.

He is head of the linguistics department of the University of Montreal, editor of the Journal of the Canadian Linguistic Association, and publisher of the Translators' Journal.

French by birth, he has received several degrees in language studies. He speaks 10 languages, among them Welsh, Eskimo and Cree.

In 1946, Professor Vinay opened the department of linguistics at the University of Montreal. Four years later he instituted a school for instantaneous translation and interpretation, the first of its kind in Canada. Six years ago, he began his Speaking French series for CBMT, Montreal.

The teaching of French on TV, as Professor Vinay sees it, enables English-speaking viewers to meet French Canadians on their own ground. It is a well-known fact, he says, that in Quebec fewer English speak French than the reverse. "Knowledge of the language will break the barriers between the two groups," states Professor Vinay. "The unity of Canada is something we should strive to achieve."

Professor Vinay and assistant Phyllis Clapperton.
